

CAMPUS CRUMBS

Fall seems to have at last arrived! The leaves are falling off the trees, and it is getting a bit cooler.

New York—(IP)—The Hunter College, the only institution of higher learning in New York City which is open to young women exclusively, last week for the first time in its 18 years of history, published cigaret advertising.

The appearance of two large cigaret advertisements in the paper was described by authorities of the college and representatives of the paper as merely the results of greater enterprise on the part of the paper's advertising department. There has never been a ban on such advertising according to Dean Annie E. Hickinbottom. Smoking is now prohibited in any part of the college's main building at Park Avenue and 68th Street, but it will be allowed in a social hall in the new Hunter College center now under construction at Jerome Park Reservoir, the Bronx.—The Plainsman.

The smallest student at Tulane University, Edward F. Sens, who is about four feet in height, has another distinction—that of being an exile from his native country, Cuba.

Sens was exiled for being one of the leaders in the student revolt following the closing of the University of Havana by President Machado in January 1930. He is a law student at Tulane and will receive his L. L. B. degree this year.—The Spectator.

CO-ED'S PAEAN

The sun shines fair, the sun shines true,
The sun shines golden bright;
The sky takes on a lovelier blue;
The clouds a daintier white.
The birds trill out a roundelay,
The rosebuds dance with glee,
Each living thing holds holiday;
The world belongs to me.

My heart beats loud, my heart beats strong,

My heart beats fast and high;
Within my soul's a rousing song,
A light within my eye,
Go, raise the banners high in air,
And spread the tidings round!
Let drums and trumpets boom and blare,

For I have lost a pound!
—The Plainsman.

"Is a man a 'sissie' if he cries, or is he justified in doing so?" was the question under discussion in Mr. Painter's Shakespeare class Wednesday morning.

Greek heroes who wept and Napoleon "of the eagle eye" were mentioned. Then Mr. Painter had a sudden thought.

Roland not only wept; he swooned! Mr. Painter went so far as to read passages to prove his point. He even found that Roland swooned off his horse!

The weighty question was decided at last. A man is justified in having a little moisture in his eyes in cases of real sentiment, but to burst out in tears on the least provocation is unpardonably "sissie."—The Spectator.

Thomasville G. S. C. W. Club Entertains for New Members

The club composed of the Thomasville alumnae of the Georgia State College for Women met at the home of the president, Mrs. W. J. Powell, on Seward street at 10:30 A. M., September 8, 1931.

The occasion was planned especially to welcome new members and to extend good wishes to those girls entering the college at Milledgeville for the first time. Misses Julia and Virginia Chesire, Florence Dobbins, Amarithia Chastain, and Lucile Hudson will enter this fall and Misses Martha McGavock, Betty Watt, Evelyn Turner, Sarah Arnold, Le Claire Wimberly, Maidie Chastain, Mary Price, Eunice Mims, and Dorothy Kennington will return.

Miss Grace Whigham, a recent graduate, was also received into the club.

About twenty-five members answered the roll call.

After the calling of the roll, Miss Robertine McLendon gave a very interesting talk, describing the various buildings and the college grounds. Miss McLendon illustrated her talk with a poster, showing not only the position of each building, but also flower plots, walks, and recreation grounds.

Numerous references to teachers, customs, and good times enjoyed there kept everyone amused and entertained.

Miss McLendon presented each new girl with a lovely souvenir in brown and gold, the college colors.

The club feels a special pride in having Miss McLendon as a member, as her record in college was an unusual one.

Miss Fannie Sue Stone, a graduate and a former faculty member of G. S. C. W., talked on the spirit and the maintenance of the school. Miss Stone emphasized the fact that G. S. C. W. is a school of worth and ideals. By the tax-payers of Georgia an education of the first rank is offered to young women of the state, at a much lower cost than can be obtained in private schools.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Mrs. Gordon Hasty; Vice-President—Mrs. W. J. Powell; Secretary—Mrs. J. K. Harper; Treasurer—Mrs. George Zeigler.

After the program Mrs. Powell invited her guests to retire from her flower filled living room to the flower garden. Here Miss Mildred Herring, Miss Ethel Herring, and Mrs. Gordon Hasty served delicious punch and sandwiches from the summer house.

The meeting proved to be one of the most enjoyable ever held by the club.

"Cross the Campus"

By Phillip Space

Greetings! to the country and congratulations to Yorktown for getting so much publicity. Wonder why Milledgeville couldn't do something like that? And here's an interesting one—"Wanted, a tall slender person with a serious face and masculine nose, also with honest character. If found, capture and lock up at once and notify Dr. Amanda Johnson, second floor, Parks." (Omit college authorities.) What's this I hear about secret marriages? But perhaps I shouldn't have mentioned it! And by the way, have you heard the report from the committee? (No—not the FINANCE committee!) I mean the one that met to see about the stepping stones. Maybe you haven't heard about the stepping stones. Well they're the new path from the front gate to the "Lib."—Did you ever walk railroad ties. No. I'm not calling anybody a tramp. But that's what walking those stones is like, too far apart to take 'em two at a time and too close for one. So you see, while the governor was appointing committees to help the unemployed somebody tried to see what could be done about the stepping stones. Did some pretty good work, too. And here's the formula or Q. E. D. or whatever it is. First take two steps straight—then one to the side. Next, take two straight and one to the side, etc. Makes you kind—a dizzy but it works! Sounds like some of Martha Lynch's mathematical induction! What about it "Mather"?—Oh, yes, Miss Scott, I saw the loveliest brown velvet dress the other day. Just what you've been looking for. And, Miss Tabb, I understand that stock in white mice has gone up a point. Wonder how Em Ashbury is—and Mina L. Collins, and all those girl s who caught appendicitis? (Did you know that Aleso Cornett escaped unseen from the hospital the other day?) Say, wouldn't you like to see Dr. Wynn at the north pole? (Now wait a minute till I finish!) Wouldn't you like to be there, too, to see where he'd get a flower for his coat? Do you know that as long I've been hanging around this place he hasn't missed a day wearing that flower. When it's so hot that nobody else can find a green leaf that doesn't look dried up—and when it's so cold everything's snowed under he finds a flower—and wears it, along with a smile that's worth noticing!—Why are Georgia people so poor? Bennice Johnson says—"Because they haven't any money." She may be right at that.—Mary Rogers was told the other day that her dress looked nice with her eyes. Do you know what she said.—"Well, that's good, 'cause I was planning to wear it with my eyes." N-o-o-o!—Say, that's a good looking little brunette in Mrs. Terry's office. Wonder who found her? Well folks it's the end of another day—Yeah!! And what a day! Singing off, I am,

Yours till we get that swimming pool!

Freshmen Form Expression Club

The freshmen interested in expression and dramatics met Thursday afternoon, October 22, for the purpose of forming a club, with Dr. Alice C. Hunter as the director. They chose as the name of the club Sock-and-Buskin. Miss Sara Stembbridge was elected president. The following officers were elected also: vice-president, Frances Knox; secretary, Frances Holsenbeck; treasurer, Melba Holland. The vice president will also serve as chairman of the program committee, and Emily Cowart will serve as chairman of the social committee.

At the meeting Thursday afternoon a delightful one-act play, "Trapped" was presented. The cast was as follows: Margaret Buxton, Audrey Ward, Elizabeth Center, and Elizabeth Land. In addition to this, Sara Stembbridge and Anne Gibson gave most interesting impersonation. The club plans to offer each meeting a one-act play and an original stunt, which will be performed by volunteers. Next meeting two plays, "Art Gallery" featuring Esther Jones and Margaret Bass, and "Proposals", with Grace Webb, Jane Leverett, Jean Battle, and Mary Helen Mitchell taking part will be given. The new officers will present the stunt which will probably be in the nature of an installation.

The project holds the interest of a large number of freshman and bids fair to be even more entertaining and profitable.

G. S. C. W. STUDENT HAILS FROM CUBA

Should you pass a strange looking girl who smiles a cheery, "Hola" at you, don't pass it up thinking "It's just some Spanish major," because it will most probably be Bertha Hopkins, hails from Havana, Cuba.

Bertha has spent nearly all of her life in Cuba, and so she speaks Spanish fluently. Her mother and father, Methodist Missionaries stationed there, are both Georgians, who lived for many years at Louisville and Statesboro.

Bertha has attended three Spanish schools in Havana, "Eliza-Bowman," "Buena Vista" and Pinson College, and she has had two years at Young Harris in Georgia. The stories she tells of her life in the Spanish schools are fascinating, and are well worth hearing.

When asked why she chose G. S. C. W. as her college, she said, "I am here for two reasons: First because my parents, both Georgians, wanted me to come to college in Georgia, and second because we had heard so much of this school and its fine Spanish Department, in which I am especially interested". She says she likes G. S. C. W. fine and is particularly enjoying her association with the students, because in Cuba she had no American companions of her own age.

IN MEMORIAM

A great light has gone to greater shores to shine eternally. Thomas Alva Edison has left us. He is not dead. As long as the electric bulb gives off its radiant light, messages are transmitted from one continent to another in a minute's time, and millions of people attend picture shows daily, Edison shall live.
He sleeps now and we'll merited in his sleep. For eighty-four years he has led the progression of the country he loved.

The little brick house in which he was born, Feb. 11, 1847, still stands in Milan, Ohio, keeping watch for the master mind that it produced.

True to his belief, "Men should work more and sleep less." Edison worked to the very end. All days were work days to him. On his eightieth birthday he spent the entire day in his laboratory. Every minute held golden opportunities for him.

In his last public speech, June 1931, he said, "My message to you is be courageous. I have lived a long time. I have seen history repeat itself again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has emerged from these stronger and more prosperous."

"Be as brave as your fathers were before you."

"Have faith!"
"Go forward!"

Somewhere in the world today there is a small lad, possibly a newsboy on a train just as the great inventor once was, to whom these words should be a challenge will be accept his challenge?

Even when death came, Edison's mind was still at work. He reasoned, "Well, if there is a hereafter, it doesn't matter, and if there isn't a hereafter it doesn't matter. I've lived my life and done my best."

The Spectator of Mississippi State College for Women, Columbus, Mississippi, observes:

"We see by the paper that the Senate of Mississippi sent a resolution to the house the other day directing all heads of departments and institutions to discharge all married women whose husbands are able-bodied and working. What about discharging all married men whose wives are able-bodied and working?

Or should we let a little thing like ability interfere with any resolution in these enlightened days of woman's ability?"

The Colonnade wishes to congratulate the staff of the Spectator, 1931, the Agnes Scott Annual. It is quite an accomplishment to have been awarded all American Honor Rating by the National Scholastic Press Association and we admire your success.

Recently The Davidsonian urged members of the student body to join a literary society. Not only is it essential to affiliate yourself with some literary organization, but you should take every opportunity to read literary publications. We recommend to you the Corinthian, the Literary publication of G. S. C. W. We say with the Davidsonian.

"Let us endeavour so to live that when we come to die even the undertaker will be sorry."—Mark Twain.

In striving to live an all-round life, very few of us find ourselves able to include everything we should, and give to each thing the proper place it should occupy, or the importance it deserves. We place the emphasis, all too often, on the wrong thing, and we leave out many things that are of great value. There is one in particular we would like to urge the value of.

Whether you are reciting in class, reading devotionals in chapel, making an after-dinner speech, seeking advice, or making love:

You like to be able to express yourself well.

Whether you are selling a car, a book, an idea, or a skyscraper, you will find self-expression the open sesame (or the shibboleth).

"Speech is the index of the mind," said Seneca, and his name lives for what he said. Every day we see countless examples, in literature, on the stage, and over the air, of "That which of: was tho't, but ne'er so well expressed."

Can you neglect so vital an asset for a well-rounded life? Are you going to be the man with the scaptre, or the man with the hoe? If you can't write a letter for a job, that will bring results, how can you ever hope to write a check?"

The Literary Guild also promotes appreciation of the literary arts of the ages.

We also to make mention of the other clubs and organizations on the campus and urge students to join.
You will find yourself growing, making acquaintances and becoming more cultured; you will be intellectually, morally, socially improved.

ANNUALLY SPEAKING

Work on the Spectrum is now in full swing. The seniors began having their pictures made Thursday.
It is rumored that if the rate of damage to Mr. Eberhart's camera keeps up as it has been going for the last few days, the Spectrum will have a large bill to pay. If the seniors haven't completely torn up the camera by October 29th the juniors will be given a chance to do their worst.

The subscription campaign went over with a bang. When the girls were asked to sign on the dotted line (as the little boy called the leopard), they totaled over two hundred more subscriptions than were turned in last year. Boy page President Hoover!

You don't want to get left out on a good thing. If you haven't subscribed yet, it isn't too late. See Louise Hatcher, Anna Everett, or Kay Vinson and give them your order.

Francy's Pharmacy reports an increase in cosmetic sales. Could this be due to the fact that there may be a beauty section in the 1932 Spectrum?

Have you heard the joke on Monk Carrigan and Kay Vinson. (Skip this if you've heard it.) When they were in Macon Monday getting ads they went into T. C. Burke, Incorporated, walked bravely to the office and asked for Mr. Burke. The man behind the desk gave a long, loud "haw-haw" and said "Mr. Burke has been dead twenty years."

Anyway, they got $150 worth of ads, sore throat, a blistered heel, and a hole in a right new pair of hose.
They called it a successful trip.

SOCIAL ITEMS

Saturday afternoon, a number of students chaperoned by Miss Beatrice Horsburgh, were taken to the "Big Guiley," a historical landmark in Baldwin county, to enjoy a bit of outdoor cooking.

The menu consisted of rifed country sausage, rolls, hot coffee and honey buns.

The girl's accompanying Miss Horsburgh were: Misses Dot Anderson; Milly Anderson, Frances Wells, Jane Scroggins, Frances Kemp, Liz Morgan, Polly Suttentfield and others.

THE ENGLISH FACULTY COMPLIMENTS FRESHMEN

The English faculty of Georgia State College for Women entertained the freshmen English students with a delightful tea, given Monday afternoon in the college gymnasium and tea room. Miss Dorothy Lipham of Franklin, Ga., president of the college Corinthian staff and Miss Eugenia Lawrence of Eatonton, president of the Literary Guild met the guests at the door. In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. J. L.
Beeson, Dr. William Wynn, Miss
Winifred Gardner Crowell, Dr. Alice
C. Hunter, Miss Bernice Legg, Miss
Katherine Scott, Miss Hallie Claire
Smith, and Miss Annette Steele.
Members of the Corinthian staff presented a one act play "Silver Lining" by Constance D'Arcy Mackay. Those playing parts were Miss Susie Dell Reamy, of Quitman; Miss Nell Edwards, of Milledgeville; and Miss Marion Keith of Marietta. The performance was under the direction of Miss Winifred Crowell. Following the play the guests entered the charmingly decorated tea room and were served by a group of English normal sophomores, including: Miss Hazel Long, Dorothy Shackelford, Marjorie
McMichael, Adrian Willis, Harriet Lawrence, Louise Mannheim, Frances Haddon, Sarah Ghenney, Gladys McClendon, Katherine Allen, Miriam Lanier.

At a recent meeting of Miss Willie O'Kelley's Sunday School class, officers were elected. They are:
President, Lucile Lee; Vice-President, Mervyn Singletary; Secretary and Treasurer, Betty Todd, and Publicity Manager, Marjorie Ennis.

Plans have already been made for the course of study to be followed.
For the next few weeks, "Miracles"
of the Bible will be discussed.

A unique entertainment has been planned to take place this week.

DREAM HOUSE

I'm building a house of dreams this spring,
Of fine white pine and hardwood floors;
Magnolia white with shutters green,
And an old brass knocker on the door.

With a trellis covered with roses,
Of love's very brightest red;
A true complement to the skies of blue,
That dreamily drift o'er head.

Each room will be a nook of joy,
Where comfort and coziness may be found;

Where love and thoughtfulness will reign,
And beauty will abound.

Oh, it's just a house of dreams today,

Miss Ruth D. Brannen and Miss Sadie Stenbridge visited Misses Mabel Underwood and Sarah Sten-bridge Sunday.

Mrs. R. J. Wilson of Greenville, Ga., visited her daughter, Ruth at Ennis Hall Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Dunn visited their daughter Rose at Ennis Hall Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Hancy was a visitor
at Ennis Hall Sunday.

ENTRE NOUS

The French Club has had two meetings so far this semester. The first was in imitation of the real French cafe which is in the open and usually on the sidewalk. This meeting was held in front of Arts Building, rare "French vines" and cakes being served for which the semester dues were given in return.

The other meeting was a call meeting at which the regular meeting time was changed to the last Tuesday of each month at 5:30. Also a committee was appointed to select the design for French club stationery. Since these meetings the social committee has been appointed and also the program committee. Frances Barton is chairman of the social committee with Ellen Tucker and Juanita Miles as her assistants and Mary Belle Gibson by virtue of her office as vice-president is head of the program committee with Ophelia Farren, Jennie Lee Cooley and Mary
B. Leftwich to help her.

Emily Sanders and Marie Parker went to Atlanta this week-end to invade the offices of Southwestern Engraving Company and Foots and Davis Company. Emily thinks she might be related to Mr. Earl Sanders, who is head of the annual service department at Foot and Davies.
When they finish uprooting the family tree we'll let you know the results.

Station S-P-E-C-T-R-U-M is now signing off. Stand by until next week and we'll tell you more about our doings.

The members of "El Circulo Español" enjoyed a delightful picnic in Nesbit Woods Saturday afternoon from five to seven o'clock. This was the first meeting of the year, and its main purpose was for the members to become acquainted with each other. The picnic supper consisted of hot dogs, pickles, coffee and marshmallows. Dr. Floyd was the chaperon and about twenty members were present.

PROMISES

Promises are spider webs,
Glimmering, glistening!
Beautiful in the sunlight,
Enticing, enhancing,
Warning in the day;
But hidden by the darkness,
They ensnare human spiders.

Promise are airy clouds,
Light, buoyant!
Accepted as a part of life,
Unobserved, forgotten,
Until the rain falls,
And no rainbow follows,
To lighten the path of fulfillment.

Thomas Alva Edison Has 1200 Inventions to Credit When Life Ends

By MISS ANITA COX

Thomas Alva Edison, the most prolific inventor in history, died at his home in West Orange, New Jersey, shortly before dawn October 18 after an illness of eleven weeks. The direct cause of death was uremic poisoning which was traced back two years to an attack of pneumonia.

He disdained the disabilities of old age and knowing the condition of his health he was consigned to giving up his earthly efforts to further scientific enlightenment of the world.

With the passing of Edison the world realizes the close of a scientific era unsurpassed. His tremendous energy, brilliant mind, progressive ideas and love of mankind constituted a life which promoted happiness and inspiration for people of the utmost parts of the globe.

It can never be said that Mr. Edison was not well educated for with only a few months of public school training his master mind acted as a teacher and his literary genius has developed into the highest degree of education. His mother, Nancy Elliott Edison, taught him during his childhood from the experience she gained as a teacher in a Canadian high school. His early interest in books can be seen in his boyhood employments, in book shops, selling papers, and later in activities in the field of journalism. When he was 15 he published the first newspaper ever printed abroad a train, and it was soon after this that he learned telegraphy from a man whose son Edison had saved from a train accident. As many experiments in science. His a proficient operator he performed desire to devote all of his time to inventing inspired him to give up other jobs and devote his entire time to his first established laboratory at Menlo Park in 1876.

Edison has 1200 patent registered in Washington. Among the most important ones follow:

The phonograph, 1877, his invention known to all ages.

The light of the world discovered Aids in the success of the radio in the incandescent lamp, 1879.

Came in 1878 with the microphone and the electric valve.

Motion pictures, 1894, for recreation.

The alkaline storage battery.

Inventions for the transmission of heat and power.

Appliances to be used for war purposes which were devised during the two years of his presidency of the Naval Consulting board at a time when the World War demanded them.

Edison's fearlessness at the approach of death was proof that his life on earth had been devoted to the happiness of his fellowman. He was a member of no church, but his acquaintances did not doubt his sincerity and belief in a Supreme guide. His friends were numerous, among the closest being Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone and John Borroughs. These three often spent their vacations with Edison at his summer home in Fort Myers, Florida.

Miss Mary G. Stillwell became his first wife in 1873. They had three children; Thomas A. Jr., Marion Estelle, and William I. Two years after Mrs. Edison's death in 1884 he married Miss Mina M. Miller. Three children were born to this union; Madeline, Charles and Theodore.

The fifty-second anniversary of the perfection of the incandescent lamp will be October 21, on which day the funeral of the genius will be held. The body lies in state in the library of his laboratory where friends and strangers alike may pay their respects. The funeral will be conducted privately from the home in West Orange and interment near the place of his numerous discoveries.

Sunday evening following his death the National Broadcasting Company changed its regular schedule in order to dedicate forty-five minutes as a memorial service to the man to whom the radio owes much of its progress. The musical part of the program consisted of favorite songs of Mr. Edison rendered in different ways. A detailed obituary of his life was given and parts of famous poems were read. This nationwide broadcast is an indication of the vast amount of gratitude to the greatest contributor to humanity, and sincere sorrow felt by his humble survivors. Not only does America owe its growth and rank among nations to Edison, but every leading country is indebted to his progressive ideas for its movement toward the goal of all people—the attainment of supreme happiness.

DRAMA GROUP MEETS WITH DR. HUNTER

The drama group of the Literary Guild at the Georgia State College for Women held its regular monthly meeting October 20 in Arts Building.

At this meeting Dr. Alice C. Hunter, advisor for the group, read an interesting portion of the play "The Doll's House," by Henrik Ibsen.

General plans were discussed for a play to be given later in the fall.

G. N. COLLEGE ITEMS

The following article appeared in The Union-Recorder, Milledgeville, Ga., September 17, 1901.

"The new session of the college has opened very auspiciously. The second week begins with a larger attendance than usual. There are nearly three hundred pupils already present, nearly ninety per cent of whom are from a distance. Of course a great many more are to come; there are new arrivals every day and by nearly every train and this influx will continue for two or three weeks yet. There are 101 girls at the Mansion, 125 at Atkinson Hall, and all of the other places in both Dormitories are engaged and will soon be occupied. There is a large number of students boarding out in private families.

The whole of Wednesday, the 11th inst., was spent in enrolling the students and collecting dues. Over $7,000 was paid to President Chappel that day in dues, fees, and deposits, this beats the financial record of any single day in the whole ten years' history of the school. It is curious to note the great change that has taken place in the kind of money in which these college dues are paid. A few years ago it required two or three shot bags to hold the silver coin collected on "opening day," while a gold coin was very, very rare; this year there was scarcely a double handful of silver, while the beautiful yellow gold was poured out in abundance. Most of the dues now however, are paid either in bills or checks. A few years ago checks were rarely ever used by the patrons.

Thursday and Friday were spent in the terrible ordeal of class entrance examination of new students. The teachers all declare that the papers handed in are decidedly the best that have been received for several years. Of course a majority of the applicants failed to get into the classes for which they applied, but the proportion of successful ones was larger than usual and comparatively few were dropped more than one class, where as usually a great host goest tumbling down a whole flight of steps.

The personnel of the new student body is remarkably fine. The average age is higher than it has been for three or four years which is a great advantage to the school. Many applicants under the required age of fifteen years—according to the new rule—were turned away and doubtless a great many others were prevented from applying because they noticed that rule published in the catalogue. A few exceptions to the rule were allowed for particular reasons.

The reception given on Saturday night by the Y. W. C. A. to the new students was a most happy and helpful occasion. A charming and short program made up of music and brief speeches was rendered after which there was a free and warm hearted social intermingling of old and new students, and many members of the faculty were present. This is an annual occasion and the one this year was the most successful and delightful that has ever been held.

A short musical program was presented at the chapel exercises of the Georgia State College for Women on Wednesday morning, October 21. Miss Elizabeth Tolar sang "Come Unto My Heart Lord Jesus," and Miss Montgomery rendered two piano selections, "Romance" by Schumann, and "Polka" by Smetana.

FLORIDA FRESHMAN LIKES UNIFORM

"I think the uniform is lovely," said an enthusiastic G. S. C. W. freshman from Florida a few days ago. "I wore my uniform all the way from home up here because I was proud of it and I think it's grand to be a 'uniform' freshman."

If all G. S. C. students spoke aloud their thoughts they would probably agree with the Florida freshman—they are proud of their uniform.

The brown and white uniform is known throughout the state and people connect it with the high ideals and principles of the college. The brown and white belongs to G. S. C. W.; let's live up to our uniform, girls.
